About one-half of the cases on the Rock county circuit court calendar were swept off the docket when the calendar was called Monday afternoon by Judge George Grimm. It is expected the jury cases will be completed in two weeks' time, depending on the number of settlements effected in a number of the personal injury and damage claims.

A panel of 15 new jurors was ordered by the court for a number were excused from the first venire. Only the jury calendar was called Monday, Judge Grimm stating that the court cases would be scheduled after the jury was dismissed.

Start State Cases
Only one criminal case was completed on the opening day. Henry Volbrecht, South Jackson street, was fined $150 when he pleaded guilty through attorney J. G. McWilliams to possession of illicit liquor. The second count, charging the destroying of evidence, was quashed.

A fine of $250 was recommended by District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie and the minimum fine was the defending attorney.

"The trouble is with most of the defendants left off with a light fine, they forget all about it the moment they are released," declared the court. "This defendant merits rather severe punishment for not thinking of his family when he committed this offense. Certainly any man should give his wife and children first consideration and except for the fact this defendant really needs Continued on Page 3.

Mother Breaks Up
Infant Marriage

Richmond, Ky. — Woodie Walton, 17, is availing himself of his 14 year old bride, Corine, daughter of Mrs. V. M. Gibson, a neighbor. The girl's mother has been spirited away by her mother, according to the young husband.

The children were schoolmates, and known to each other since they were five. When the girl did not come home from school, Mrs. Gibson notified Sheriff Deatherage, who telegraphed over the state to prevent the marriage.

Deatherage's telegram reached Jellico 10 minutes too late. Mrs. Gibson went to Jellico, brought the youngsters here, and then took her daughter to a wedding outfit, making an engagement to meet the boy husband later. They did not return.

WATWORTH COUNTY
BUDGET ADOPTED

Total Is $585,266.41, Including
$267,850 for Highways
During 1923.

[By Associated Press.]
Elkhorn—The Watworth county board concluded its business for the November session here Tuesday morning and adjourned until Jan. 23. Adoption of the 1923 budget, approving the report of the committee on equalization and asking Assemblyman Frank Lawson to introduce a bill in the legislature to give the county power to create arterial highways, was the chief business of the session. The budget totalling $585,266.41 or $57,000 less than this year, provides for the following items:

State charges $152,876.23
Highways $267,850.00
Special taxes 1,576.65
County taxes 97,010.00
Additional items are:
Income and corporation tax $58,806.99
Surtax 12,258.81
County schools 29,918.72
Total $494,912.93

The county is equalized at $80,517,000, according to the equalization committee report, which was adopted. The assessed valuation of Watworth county is $71,082,121 on the basis of figures presented by assessors.

Provision is made for $29,000 for salaries of county officers and employees during the coming year, the same as in 1922. An appropriation of $20,000 for the county asylum and poor farm is made with an additional $4,000 for outdoor relief. A request for $2,000 for a truck for the institution was denied.

Passage in the legislature of a bill authorizing townships to create arterial highways would lessen the north-south number of accidents on highways, it was argued.

[By Associated Press.]
Madison—Motor bus regulation, a subject for legislative action at the coming session of the Wisconsin legislature, was considered at the national meeting of utility and railroad commissioners, recently held in Detroit, according to L. E. Gettle, member of the Wisconsin commission.

He said the state of Washington was the only one which now regulates efficiently this new and growing mode of transportation. Details of the Washington plan are to be sent to Wisconsin for study in formulating a bill to be introduced in the Wisconsin legislature.

Drastic action by the legislature to regulate the traffic is expected by the railroad commission, due to the attitude of farmer members who have seen their roads cut up by heavy passenger carrying cars.

A bill placing motorbuses control under the railroad commission, introduced by Assemblyman Perry in the last session of the legislature and passed, but was vetoed by Governor Blaine on the ground that it was interfered by the street railway interests.

TAYLOR FINDS LOT OF THINGS, EVEN A COOL MILLION

What is a million dollars more or less?
County employees in the office of Howard W. Lee, county clerk, on Monday were chasing up and down columns of figures searching for an even million dollars. But, alas, it was not cash—only that which is as sure and new—a day almost as fatal as death—taxes.

When the assessment schedule adopted by the board was presented to the clerks, they added the allotments to the different tax units and the total was just $1,000,000 short of the total adopted.

Consequently the search, Supervisor E. A. Taylor was the finder of the million. He has the reputation of finding a good many things even the local assessors cannot. The best part of the missing million was that it was found under the name Janesville. The equalization report was last night a short of the assessment figure put on the county seal. The report when corrected read Janesville, $26,545,000 and Beloit $25,992,000. Once again Beloit lives up to the origin of its name "Below-it" even in taxes.

JACKMAN SECOND OLDEST MAN IN BUSINESS HERE

CLARENCE S. JACKMAN, SR.

The 66th birthday of Clarence S. Jackman, vice president of both the Rock County National bank and Rock County Savings and Trust company, of this city, and the second oldest man in active business here, was quietly observed at his home, 63 South First street, Monday.

Mr. Jackman is in excellent health, and is as enthusiastic about work as he was 55 years ago, when he first went into the Rock County National bank, organized by his father, Timothy Jackman. He works daily by the side of his son, Frank E., and grandson, Clarence, Jr.

Dan Ryan, 79, is Janesville's oldest man still active in business.

Mr. Jackman was born in this city Nov. 20, 1856. He attended school here, but left before finishing, when he felt the call of his country and, at the age of 18, entered the Civil war in the 24th Wisconsin artillery. He fought at Missionary Ridge and followed Sherman to the sea, participating in the battle of Atlanta, and the siege and capture of Savannah.

After being mustered out, he returned to this city, and spent a year here in the milling business. After 18 months in Montana, he again returned and entered the Rock County National bank as a messenger. 55 years ago last July, he was rapidly and was president of this organization for many years, having been succeeded recently by his son, Frank.

On March 10, 1893, he married Clara Hanchett, who is now enjoying health equally good as his husband's.

Mr. Jackman was chairman of the board of directors of the bank after resigning his presidency, but upon the death of his brother, Clarence, he was elected vice president.

Merchant Marine
Periled Without Protection, Claim

(By Associated Press.)
Washington.—Enactment of the administration merchant marine bill was urged on congress Tuesday by President Harding, as necessary to relieve the government of present "staggering losses" in operation of the war built merchant fleet, and to establish a program of assured shipping to serve the nation in war and give a guaranty of commercial independence in time of peace.

Personally addressing a joint session of the house and senate, the executive declared an actual monetary saving to the government would result from the proposed law. He challenged every insinuation of favored interests and the enrolling of the special few at the expense of the public treasury.

The legislation, he asserted, automatically guarded against enrichment or perpetual bestowal.

"If success attend, as we hope it will," he added, "the government outlay is returned, the inspiration of opportunity to care, remains, and American transportation by sea is maintained."

Nations Oppose Subsidy.
The president said concern about the American merchant marine policy was not limited to our own nation, adding that the maritime nations of the world "were in complete accord with the position here in the pending measure."

He declared those nations had a perfect right to such an attitude but that he wished to stress the American viewpoint which held that the maritime nations of the world, the American carriers at sea, the dependence of American commerce and American vessels for American reliance in the event of war.

Important to All.
Mr. Harding declared it would be most discouraging if a measure of "such transcending national importance" must have its rate depend on geographical, occupational, professional or partisan objections. A commercial enterprise on the seas and ample agencies for the promotion in carrying of American commerce, he asserted, were of no less importance to the people of the Mississippi than the Missouri valley, the great northwest and the Rocky mountain states, than to the seaboard states and industrial communities inland.

Lausanne.—Delegates to the Lausanne conference, the preliminary oratory concerning the close relations of Great Britain, France and Italy behind them, faced Tuesday the real test of the strength of the ties which spokesmen for the three powers have insisted existed among them.

The conference met in private session for purposes of organization and to start work of making peace with the Turks.

Four centuries Turkey has been able to protect herself by getting European nations to quarrel among themselves over the near eastern question. The rivalry of France, Italy and Great Britain for supremacy in the Levant has been the protection of weak sultans in the past and it remains to be seen whether it will also be of service to Mustafa Kemal Pasha and his Angora associates.

Without deviation from the usual custom, the six men sent to Joliet for a term of one to five years, were finger printed, measured, recorded and assigned to cells. No special favors were shown to those who were imprisoned in the county jail.

FOOTVILLE TEST RECORDS

Janesville Rose-83, a pure-bred Shorthorn, selected to be shown in the Rock county herd for the coming Chicago International Livestock Exposition. The high cow in the Rock county herd was still gaining on milk flow. The Shorthorn milked 23.3 pounds for the day, making 1569 pounds for the month, and her butter-fat test was 4.7, giving her a total of 73.7 pounds butterfat for the 30 day period.

The herd of Wayne Lewis is making a notable showing in the association. The grade herd, reports Tester Dale C. Merriam, is producing well because of good cows and good management.

QUICK ACTION TO ACCREDIT COUNTY

Rock Must Show Speed to Get Just Share of Indemnity Funds.

Two thousand accredited herds in Rock county.

"Such an accomplishment is practical, considering that there are about 2,000 herds in the county—mainly dairy cattle—and a county-wide test is likely to come within the county this winter. A realization of this fact would mean that Rock county would at once become the leading livestock center of the world, with international fame for clean herds and quality stock.

First must come proper and effective organization for the county-wide test to eradicate bovine tuberculosis. The majority of farmers now see the necessity and advantage of a clean county. Right now it is a question of speed in getting the parties signed to have the tests made this winter.

Plan Is Practical

"Rock county with 2,000 accredited herds is not an idle dream," declared Dr. Arthur Killian, Wisconsin livestock commissioner, who has been more than any other man in furthering testing work in southern Wisconsin. "It is much to the advantage of the farmer to stay accredited once he tests out, in order to obtain the full measure of profit from increased returns on surplus stock, clean milk and dairy products and clean market swine.

"I have had splendid co-operation in Rock county and the encouraging fact is the number of breeders having small herds and farms, who are eager for being accredited and staying on the state and federal list. Once this county is tested out and a policy of staying accredited, the farmers here could outdistance other counties now having favorable reputation in cattle sales."

Build Up Live Stock

Until the county-wide test and co-operative effort, Barron county was a back number. The accrediting of the county and boosting has put the northern county into the front rank of Wisconsin. The Barron county farmers experience no difficulty in selling stock at profitable prices. Rather their trouble is to locate sufficient stock the owners are willing to see from among all farmers to meet the demand.

The market for good dairy cattle is now going to the clean counties to a great extent. The buyers will continue to buy in accredited counties. The market now, and in the future, will be for better and cleaner cattle from accredited counties.

There are good indications the dairy market will other pay a premium to owners of tested herds or penalize those not being accredited.

The hog market situation is getting serious. One Rock county farmer recently had 40 per cent of a shipment of swine sent to the tank because of infection. The figures from five packing plants of Wisconsin for a period of Oct. 2 to 23 were that out of 14,674 hogs killed 29,345 were infected. This is 20 per cent plus, and one small plant buying Wisconsin hogs had a 40 per cent retention. The average was brought down by the reason to see the big plants purchased corn belt swine that showed little infection. Wisconsin market hogs are being discriminated against on the pork market and this discrimination costs the farmer money.

Test Is Necessary

The basic foundation of Rock county is livestock. Rock county depends on the returns from this stock. This basic industry should be developed to the fullest extent and actions that will bring the greatest and most permanent benefit and financial results.

That development hinges around being an accredited county—having better herds, production records and purebred sires.

Such development is not alone for the purebred breeder. Most of them do not need it. It is for every farmer anxious to see his county advance to the top peak position and stay there, with profitable business for everyone.

Green Lake, Winnebago and Juneau counties are now circulating petitions for the county-wide test. There will be 14 northern counties on the accredited list and not one in the southern district, the home of the best livestock in the state. The northern counties are getting the business—not because they have better cattle, for they haven't—than to compare with that in Rock, Jefferson and Green counties—but because they are accredited.

Better Dairy Prices

It is hoped to secure the desired number of petitions signed within the next 60 days in Rock county, to have the county-wide test put through here during the winter and spring months. For the reason the state and federal agents cannot work in northern counties during the winter months, they can be shifted to Rock county to make the test in record time. Providing the test comes this winter, Rock will be the first southern county to go through with the county-wide program, which means a material head start.

Rock county can have 2,000 accredited herds through proper co-operation with the program of better and clean cattle to keep "Rock County First."

"Success in dairying is in economical milk production. There are numerous examples in Rock county where farmers were far better off after the tests than before—even though they suffered above the usual losses. They took their indemnity money and purchased about half as many good cattle as they had before, and produced more milk at less cost. They started a new herd on the foundation of having good cattle or none at all—and it paid.

No single thing could advertise the county more and draw more business for all farmers than to have the most accredited herds of any county in the world. And Rock county has the proper community spirit to put it across.

CLINTON TO PUSH DRAINAGE PROJECT

Vote to Start Work Soon on Natesia District 1, Abandoning 2 and 3.

Decision was reached by Clinton residents Monday night, to drain that part of the so-called Natesia drainage district, set off as number one, at an estimated cost of about $100,000. The drainage district is located in Clinton and three of the present. There was good attendance at the meeting in Clinton at which County Agent R. T. Glasco and R. D. Jones, collector of agriculture and engineer, appeared.

A survey of the drainage tract near Clinton was made during the afternoon. Three miles of line is proposed running from the north end of the tract to the south end, and from there into Little Turtle creek. Engineer Jones described the draining of the first district was feasible.

A blasting demonstration was held Tuesday afternoon by the county agent and John Swenbert, Madison, near Orfordville. Phosphate acid was used.

Eight new members have been secured for a start on the organization of another crop testing association in the Clinton district, according to the county agent.

The meeting of the committee to have charge of the union work in Rock county, planned for Nov. 25, has been postponed until Jan. 5. A Craig returns from the Pacific coast trip. The banquet for the boys and girls will be held at the hotel on Dec. 2, at which time the cups and achievement buttons will be distributed.

PARK OWNER FINED FOR HAVING STILL

Byron Jones, Formerly of Riverside Park, Assessed $100.

Just before the trial was scheduled to go to the trial Byron F. Jones, Chicago, who until recently managed the Riverside park, before Judge George Grimm in the Rock county circuit court, Tuesday, pleaded guilty to having an illicit still on his property. He paid a fine of $100 and costs.

This is the second criminal case disposed of on the present circuit court calendar and late Monday afternoon the jury was waived in the state cases against Agnes and Mary McCarthy, charged with destroying evidence of crime.

During the last summer the sheriff's office made a raid at Riverside park during which they found an old still in a cave underneath one of the cottages. Jones was arrested and the case taken to the circuit court on charge of venue.

Judge Grimm refused to reduce the bail of August Putnam to $1,000, only coming down to $4,000 which the defendant has thus far not been able to furnish. This is the only remaining case on the present criminal calendar.

Many intelligent mothers overlook these few simple facts about food-

EVERY mother interested in her children's welfare meets a problem in the proper feeding of her boys and girls.

Parents often do not realize the evil effects of mal-nutrition; and that care in the selection of food will avoid a large percentage of children's ills.

One of the best of all foods for providing proper nourishment for growing boys and girls is Grape-Nuts—made of whole wheat flour and malted barley, and scientifically baked for twenty hours. This long baking brings out a delicious flavor, makes the food easy to digest—without fermentation. Grape-Nuts with milk or cream is a complete food.

Here is a suggestion for better health: Serve Grape-Nuts as often as the folks wish it.

"It is a common cause with its benefits commonly shared," said Mr. Maitland Sea Highway.

If government aid is a better term to apply to the authorization aggregating $75,000,000 to promote good roads for market highways, the president added, it is equally fit to be applied to the establishment and maintenance of "American market highways" on the "salted seas."

As to present government operation of the shipping board fleet, Mr. Harding said there was the unavoidable lack of willing out of a $50,000,000 annual loss and losses aggregating "many hundreds of millions" were sacrificed or scrapped shipping. He called attention to the fact that the government ships were being worn out without any provision for replacement and that a program of surrender and sacrifice and the liquidation which, he declared, would be inevitable unless the proposed legislation were enacted would cost scores of millions.

FEDERATING THE SOCIAL AGENCY FUNDS.

Reports from all over the country show there has been a falling off in the giving by the public for many regularly established social agencies and that late drives have in most cases proved little more than failures. In Janesville in 1921, in a dozen appeals for money running from the Y. M. C. A. to Russian famine relief, the citizens paid about $50,000. Many of the appeals even then fell far short of the desires. There were other appeals for funds for various purposes, not at all sociological. Including the Woodrow Wilson Foundation. Had the funds been collected at one time for social agencies in the light of experience of others, it would have saved a large amount of labor and brought into the lists of contributors a number of people who at this time and under the plans which are in operation for the collection of money, do not participate. The experience of Rockford related by a speaker at the Members Forum of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night, was interesting in that it showed $16,000 collected from persons who theretofore had never contributed. In most of the cases the people who joined the contributors' list had never been approached before.

The adoption of a Community Chest plan is a live topic in Janesville. One thing needed also is the federation and coordination of the various agencies in Janesville for the relief of the poor, sick and needy. This might be brought about without waiting for a Community Chest proposition to be accepted and is quite necessary in the efficient handling of such cases.

From the present outlook there will be something like eight or ten Third Parties formed in the next few months.

REMOVAL OF THE SULTAN FROM TURKEY

While a score or so years ago the removal of the sultan from Constantinople under circumstances similar to those surrounding his flight Thursday, would have been an event to open the mouth of the world, we are now so prepared for any eventuality in Europe or Asia that it has created scarcely a ripple. It is valuable chiefly as an historical episode marking the end of the reign of the Moslem emperor in the ancient Greek city of Constantinople, once the Eastern capital of the Roman or Byzantine empire and the seat later of the Greek Archbishop who was the titular head of that church.

It was in 1800 when Ottoman, the Turkish leader, at Yenishahr, assumed the title of sultan. His followers took the name of "Ottomans" as being more comprehensive than "Turk"—embracing Moor and Arab, Hindoo and Persian, Kurd and Barbarian, Mameluke and a fusion of Greek and Turkish blood. In 1453 the greatest of the early Ottoman sultans, Mohammed the Conqueror, took Constantinople, annexed all the Balkans and extended the borders of European Turkey to the outposts of Hungary. From that day until Thursday, November 16, 1922, the sultan has lived at the palace at Constantinople. Now he is a fugitive from his own people and the most terrible excommunication of his office and himself has come from the Turkish Nationalists in that Ankara pronouncement declaring his office vacant.

What shall be set up in its place? Shall a new Ottoman empire rise and under the representative plans of the Ankara government be able to keep the many tribes and divergent peoples who are related chiefly by religious fanaticism, together in a political unit as they have been held by religious fervor? If they are so held and make common cause the world will be forced to fight to keep them in check. If they separate over the religious question, and all do not agree as to the selection of the future Caliph, there will be hope of making terms with them to insure some consideration of Christian peoples who are forced to remain within Moslem territory.

It does not add to the joy of life to know that the kick against Volstead is only about one-half of one per cent American.

DR. HUTCHINSON ON THE LOWERED DEATH RATE.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, noted writer on medical topics and himself a physician of note, calls attention to the remarkable change in the United States coming as a result of prohibition. Dr. Hutchinson is quoted as saying: "The lowest estimate of reduction, advanced by medical men of thirty to fifty years of experience, attending a meeting of a national medical association, was 80 per cent, and some ran as high as 95 percent. A statement that can now be made with absolute certitude is that all over the country there has occurred a most unmistakable and striking decline in the general death rate from all causes, until it has now reached its most triumphant low water mark in all recorded history."

If we let the celebrated French anarchist Longuet say what he pleases in America why should there be any suggestion to bar Clemenceau?

One of the recent attacks on the tariff comes from a concern in New York state making embroidery. That particular industry here is a branch of another firm which has 500 or more machines operating in Switzerland and ninety machines in New York. Of course the Swiss concern is interested in having its Swiss mills busy and with a tariff there will be more shuttles used.

Industrial Divisions of U. S.

Washington.—What the development of communication has done to bring all parts of the United States more closely together, the simultaneous development of a variety of interests has partially offset and a point has been reached where the term, a citizen of the United States, is not a narrow identification. The fact is that the United States comprises a number of nations, the people of some of which are as different from those of others as though they belonged to foreign nations.

Industrial development has brought this about and high railroad rates are intensifying the tendency. Imagine an enlightened inhabitant of some other country who had never heard of the United States and did not know that the territory from coast to coast and from Lakes to Gulf was all one political domain. Assume that he travels all over the United States, talks with the people and becomes familiar with their ways of life and opinions, but by some trick or conspiracy is prevented from learning that he has spent his time all under one flag. In all probability he would tell you that he had visited five nations.

Among the five separate countries which he would be likely to find would be, first, a territory embracing New England and the Atlantic Coast States down to Maryland and including New York and Pennsylvania. Next, he would discover a great country known as the Middle West. The third nation doubtless would be the South and would include approximately the one-time confederacy. For the fourth country he would discover a strange new land for which he would be at a loss to find a name. It would be the territory embracing the northwestern states such as Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho and perhaps Iowa and Nebraska. The fifth would be the Pacific coast.

Our traveler would find a general similarity of language but no means an identical language in each nation. Indeed, he might find that a native of New England would have no little difficulty in understanding the every day colloquial language of a North Carolinian, though all nations would write an almost identical language.

The traveler would find the fundamental differences which differentiated the five nations were industrial. A nation is formed by its interests and comes to think along lines dictated by its material well-being. Its policies invariably are governed by such matters as manufactures and soil.

The most compact and self-sufficient of the five nations which the imaginary traveler would visit would be the New England and Atlantic Coast nation. Its capital would be New York and its people would have almost wholly industrial interests. It would be a country of careful manners, of luxurious living, of fashionable habits. It would have an air of arrogance and a pride of tradition which would be reminiscent of Europe.

The next country would have more the air of the newly rich. The country called the middle West would be a hustling land with everybody tramping on everybody else in business hours, but with rather homely and old-fashioned manners during the social hours. There would be considerable imitation of the manners and customs of New England, but a careless contempt of eastern refinements.

The nation called the South would be strange to the traveler. He would find a new world in which people lived and thought almost as though they dwelt on another planet. In the South he would find the greatest differences of speech and manner. There, too, he would find a good deal of tradition and old world mannerisms, but so thoroughly altered by native conditions as to represent neither Europe nor New England, while partaking some things of both. Our imaginary traveler would be convinced that the New England nation was either concerned with some territory or established colonies in a few places in the South.

Going north to the Minnesota and Dakota country, our traveler would be entirely transfixed. He would find new differences of language and much altered political ideas. He would find a Non-Partisan League which would convince him that this part of the world had no relation whatever to the South.

Taking the long journey across the continental divide, the modern Herodotus would enter a fresh land. Here he would find even the pretense of solidarity gone. He would encounter the downright statement that he was in a different country with different policies both foreign and domestic. Just as in Middle West he had found a new capital city at Chicago, in the South a separate capital city at Richmond—or perhaps he might suspect New Orleans of the honor—and in the North, a capital city at Minneapolis, he would find that San Francisco was the capital of the Pacific coast. Not in his futile wanderings would he find that Washington was capital of any of the five nations. That, he would discover, merely was the headquarters of the American League of Nations.

In New England he would find a nation of manufacturers and shippers; in Middle West a nation of manufacturers and growers of corn and hogs; in the South a nation of cotton planters; in the Northwest, a nation of wheat growers and on the Pacific coast, a nation of lumbermen and fruit growers. In every nation he would find the thoughts and actions of the population centered around their industries and that they would think politically and socially in strict accordance with the policies which would advance their home industries, even though at the expense of those of the other nations.

Our traveler would hear much of the republican and democratic parties, but he would find the Republican Leader, Senator Lodge, and the Democratic Leader, Senator Underwood, much nearer in thought and action to each other than Mr. Lodge would be to his republican colleague, Senator La Follette or Senator Underwood to his democratic colleague, Senator Reed.

An economic theory into the causes of the growth of these five separate nations would reveal that transportation has been the secret. About ten years ago, the interests of these five nations were apparent but all were recognized to be national in scope. This was because the Pacific coast fruit grower could send his products to New England for a low railroad freight rate while the manufacturers of New England could cross the continent for a relatively small sum. With the advent of the war in Europe and rising costs of transportation, these long hauls were made impracticable. The value of the product would not pay the freight rate and a profit in exportation. The intimate intercourse was curtailed. Each nation was thrown back upon itself, and in natural course, became more self-reliant, more isolated.

How far this tendency will develop is recognized as one of the most important problems before the United States. Will the problem of industrial and economic secession increase in perplexity until it threatens to become as dangerous as political secession? Statesmen at Washington and economists throughout the country are studying the problem and the agreement is general that railroad freight rates constitute the key. The next several sessions of congress are planning to attempt a solution.

THE WAR IS OVER
"The war is over!" so they said.
When I recalled the days of pain,
The struggles and the blood they shed
That liberty might here remain.
"The war is over!" they replied.
"That happened four long years ago!"
Four years ago our brothers died,
Four years since we were cheering so!
But yesterday there passed along
A soldier with a missing limb.
The war is history for the throng,
But it's a lingering war with him.
The war is over! Now and then
I shudder when I hear the phrase,
Thinking of all the battered men
For whom it has no closing days.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT
BY ROY K. MCCLINTON.

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN.
Th claims agent of a well-known accident insurance company says there is at times considerable humor discernible in the somber background of his business. Some cases were reported to him as follows:

"I placed an electric fan beside my bed on a hot night. While asleep I stuck my foot in it." "In a playful mood I kicked at my wife while she was sleeping and accidentally struck her on the knee, thereby spraining the big toe of my left foot."

"I was undressing for bed. In removing my union suit I fractured the second finger of my left hand."

"I was embraced by a friend, who playfully said that he could make me cry, and fractured my rib."

"On a private yacht I had just had a high ball, got up, the boat gave a lurch and I sat down on the glass."

"Missed my train and while waiting on country road fell over a cow lying in the road."

"Sitting in a chair in a barber shop and billiard parlor, a ball from the pool table near by struck me on the nose, breaking nose and injuring one eye."

"Had been talking with another man and as I started to walk along didn't notice a woman had pushed a baby carriage directly in front of me—fell over it."

"I was going down the walk in front of my house when an automobile wheel which had come off two blocks away rolled down the hill and struck me, fracturing both bones of my right leg."

"I was riding in an automobile when it struck a hole in the road, causing my teeth to come loose, my right arm to be broken and my jaw was fractured."

"Looking for burglars, I was accidentally mistaken by one of my neighbors for the man we were looking for and he shot me in the arm."

He was a proper professional conjurer, and after proceeding to get the audience under his spell, he commenced in earnest.

"Now, ladies and gentlemen," he said, with a wave of the hand, "this is the magic cabinet. I invite any lady in the audience to enter the cabinet. I will then close the door, and when it shall be opened again, the lady will have disappeared, leaving no trace."

There was an impressive silence until a little, undersized man in the second row turned to an enormous woman what sat by him, and breathed eagerly:

"Maria, dear, won't you oblige the gentleman?"

There is always a little something to be thankful for when we approach Thanksgiving day. A fire in Honolulu destroyed 4,000 kuliaks.

Who's Who Today

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.
Dr. Royal S. Copeland, senator-elect from New York state to the U. S. senate, held a public office 18 years ago, but of this New York constituents know all too well.

He was elected mayor of Ann Arbor, Mich., on the republican ticket and is still talked of as the most progressive and hardest working mayor the city ever had.

Election day was the future senator's thirty-fourth birthday. His father who is 90 years old, was for 30 years president of the board of education of Dexter, Mich., a town which Dr. Copeland's grandfather helped found.

Dr. Copeland's first job was as a janitor at Dexter. After high school he entered his uncle's store and then taught rural school. He said enough to go to normal school and entered the University of Michigan for his medical course. For five years he practiced in Bay City and taught in the university. Then he was elected mayor of Ann Arbor.

In 1908 Dr. Copeland went to New York as dean of the New York Hospital Medical College and dean of Plover Hospital. He became known as a skillful operator in diseases of the eye. In wartime he was a member of the mayor's committee on national defense and later the health commissionership was offered him.

He is a member of the national board of control of the Epworth League.

He married in 1908 Miss Frances Spaulding of Ann Arbor. They have a son, Royal S., Jr., 12 years old.

Like many, other misguided victims of chronic bronchitis and allied troubles, he employs a physician, pays substantial fees for medical advice and care, yet unsatisfactorily rejects the doctor's advice about the most essential matters of hygiene. "You may make some brave brained people believe such nonsense, but not me," he declares. "If exposure does a cause colds, why does mine grow worse every winter?" And no matter how painstakingly and explicitly the doctor teaches him why the bronchitis gets worse in the season when Grampy spends his time indoors in foul air and desert dryness, Grampy doesn't heed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Iodine to Prevent Colds.
Please print the directions for taking iodine to prevent and cure colds. (Mrs. H. P. M.)
Answer:—Cocculony of iodine in the food in regions far from the sea or at considerable altitude, probably accounts for the frequency of simple colds among children, particularly girls. This cocculony may be supplied by administering cod liver oil. Each meal, as has been done in some of the public schools in cities of the Great Lakes region, a cod liver oil capsule, which does not matter particularly what form of iodine, save that very small quantities are necessary. One or two capsules of the cod liver oil may be given each day, in a glass of water, for a period of six weeks or longer. It is not necessary to use less than a quart of the drinking water, for a period of a month each spring and autumn.

This has not only prevented colds on a large scale when systematically given, but it has cured many cases of simple colds.

Persons with exophthalmic goitre should not experiment with iodine in any form, unless under medical direction and observation.

Which Oil and Salt.
Which is the most harmless physio, cod liver oil or vitamin (V. P. C.)? Neither can be called a harmless physio, but it is difficult to say which is the more harmful. Ferrous salts work more harm than cod liver oil, for adults abuse the oil, and infants are murthered by the other.

Quarantine and White.
What are the chances of the offspring of a white and a black being born black? (H. M.)

Answer:—Some of the children may have more pigment than the average white child, but they will be white. The average degree of pigmentation of the skin of all the children would be less than that of the white parent, but the chance of a black child being born of such parentage is practically nil.

YOUNG PEOPLE

Chapter 3

Glady's did not ask, "Dora, will you make the refreshments?" The supreme authority of the house was Aunt Maude—if Aunt Maude said yes, the thing was done. Dora did as she was told. In fact, if Dora had thought about it, she would have considered it polite of Glady's to bother asking her mother! They had been through this before.

When they were ready to leave the table, Glady's remarked casually: "Well—I'll have to dress so as to be ready. Dora, you do the dishes without me tonight; you don't have to dress till later."

"Of course," Dora answered—the expected answer.

It was a rule in the Nicholson house that the girls did the supper dishes. "I do my work and I'm tired, I'm entitled to my evenings," Aunt Maude would remark now and then. So after the meal, she sat and darned, or sewed, now and then she read and most often—when people did not drop in to call—she sat in her chair and dozed, the magazine she was pretending to glance at, lying in her lap.

Dora sometimes wondered how anyone could sleep as much as her Aunt Maude.

"It's why she keeps so fat," Dora's father said once. "When she awakes and working, she's going like a steam engine, but when she relaxes, she makes up for it by sleeping. Why grudge her forgetfulness?" At which Dora laughed a little.

She had an odd laugh, it seemed, it could be called a laugh. When she even smiled, she had the same nervous trick of holding her hand over her mouth. This was because her Aunt Maude had constantly reminded her how ugly she was during the days when she was losing her first teeth and acquiring mature ones.

"Hello! Look at the elephant tusks the child has," she remembered saying again and again during that period.

To be sure, she said the same thing to her own Glady's a couple of years later. But the stolid Glady's only replied by opening her mouth wider and laughing at her mother, her chubby cheeks red as sun-kissed apples.

But the little Pandom, super-sensitive as only a youngster can be, flushed with shame and hid her mouth when she laughed. In the proper time, her teeth became as white and even as anyone could wish. But the queer, little nervous habit lasted.

That was only one of the many reasons why she was quite as glad to stay back in the kitchen and make refreshments for the party Glady's was having. So she cleared off the table while Glady's and her mother dressed, and was up to her elbows in scrubby hot dishwater when Mrs. Nicholson came down, an apron over her best gown, to lend a hand.

"We can have sandwiches and cocoa, there's lots of milk," that lady decided. "Aridge won't make this morning. That ought to be enough for any party, I say, but Glady's wants fudge as well."

For all her own strong mindedness and firm temper, she allowed herself to be run by her daughter to an astonishing degree.

She began swiftly cutting and buttering bread, suppling off thin slices of crust—this was always done for parties—concocting herself for this extravagance by remarking that "these will dry and we'll roll them into bread crumbs for frying oysters."

The "party" arrived, and as Glady's always took a long time to dress, Mrs. Nicholson was called from the kitchen. Dora's father came in, just as the girl had reached that most disagreeable stage of the washing up—the greasy plates and pans.

"It's a damned shame," he protested. "I'd have come and done these myself only Pete and I had to clear the snow from the sidewalk—else the damned party couldn't get in."

Jim often longed to swear, but the gentleness of his disposition never got him beyond the word "damn." And it was only under great emotion that he got that far. The girl knew he was really honest.

"It's all right," she said cheerfully. "I don't mind. We're paid for this you know. Dad, so we mustn't complain."

"If you can't get out, being paid," the man grumbled, looking off his coat. "Here, go get dressed, I'll finish these."

But Dora had too much to do to think of that. She finished the sandwiches and cut and arranged the cake, while fudge was boiling on the stove. She let her father arrange the table, well knowing he would do it awkwardly, so she would have to go over it. But it made him feel better.

Frequent bursts of laughter came from another room—the party was "on." She finished the candy and set it to cool, saw that her aunt had come back to the table properly. Then, hastily washing her hands, she ran up to her room to dress. Her one party dress was an old pink silk discarded by Glady's, badly remade by herself, hideously unbecoming. She hated it. Given a cold, nervous hand pressed now and then to her lips—she ran down to join the "party."

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Kent Forbes

ANSWERED LETTERS

G. T.—Any face treatment which stimulates the skin, will gradually remove the scars that are the result of pimples. Cold cream, massage and the use of lots of other astringents are to be recommended.

One—if you are in normal health, there are two easy ways to increase your weight. One is to take one or two tablespoons of olive oil before each meal, and the other is to drink the fattening chocolate malted milk and egg combination. To make this melt sufficient chocolate and sugar for a thick syrup, then beat up an egg in a glass of milk, add a few tablespoons of chocolate syrup and as much plain or whipped cream as you can.

Using henna shampoo according to my formula will not change the color of the hair but will make it glossy and bright in tone. The henna shampoo is made by mixing one ounce of powdered Egyptian henna and three ounces of castile soap, and using a heaping tablespoonful of this in a pint of hot water for each shampoo. This should be lathered over the head and allowed to remain on for 10 or 15 minutes.

M. L.—To make the cleansing cream, heat the oil and water, they are melted, warm the rose water, with the other ingredients in it, then remove from the fire and pour the rose water slowly into the oil, beating them thoroughly together. As they cool the mixture will thicken. When about the consistency of thick cream, pour off into jars. Do not let the ingredients too hot as they will not blend properly.

M. L.—The legs are too thin, it is possible that you are too thin, however. If you want to build yourself up generally eat good fattening food, and exercise in the fresh air. Exercise is the best way to develop the legs, gym work, outdoor sports, and swimming are all excellent.

Andou—If your hair has never been more than six inches long and in the condition you describe, the first thing to do is to cut it short like a boy's. Give the hair an egg shampoo once in three weeks, letting the egg dry into the scalp before the washing. Every other night massage with a good hair tonic (I can send you my formula if you desire it) and every night massage with the fingers so as to keep the scalp loose and invigorated. Let the hair grow in again slowly.

Yellie—Agar agar will have the same effect no matter how taken. I suggest cereal because the two mix well. You can put in a little water and drink it if you want, or mix it with any sort of a wet dish of food. The main idea is to eat a teaspoonful of it every day, to keep the system clean.

TODAY'S RECIPES
Pork Sausage—Pork Sausage is a hearty and heat-producing food for the cold weather and makes a tasty and excellent breakfast if not served with other hearty things. The pork-sausages take the place of toast or rolls and are a welcome change. Sausages, either in the link or meat, should be put into a fairly hot frying pan and cooked slowly until "nicely brown. Underdone sausage is very unpalatable and not at all digestible, as I once found to my sorrow.

Buckwheat Cakes—That used always to be found on the great American breakfast table from November to March, are made as follows: Soak one pint of milk by pouring in one pint of boiling water. Dissolve a yeast cake in lukewarm water and add to the milk and water when it is lukewarm. One teaspoon salt, one of sugar, buckwheat flour to make batter. Let rise overnight. Add more water or milk and more flour to what is left and let rise for next day. Add a little baking soda if needed. To the housewife who does not care to get her cakes as above there are various commercial brands of prepared pancake flour to which you add milk or water and get a very palatable cake. This is a boon especially to the business woman who has to make every minute count.

If one is fortunate enough to have any roast, steaks, etc., you have on hand with cold water and cook slowly for two hours. Leftover meat gravy, whether thickened or not, may be added. Strain and set aside to cool. Remove fat and add any raw vegetables desired: potatoes, turnips, carrots, onions, celery, etc., and cook until vegetables are done.

Celery and Nut Sandwiches—Cut celery up small, add chopped nut meats, some salt and mayonnaise or cream salad dressing and spread between slices of buttered bread.

HELPFUL HINTS
To mend runs in silk hose stitch an sewing machine with silk thread. It is not nearly so noticeable as darning. Another way is to get kind of the dropped stitch with a fine crocheting hook and crochet it in.

Keeping the Sink Sweet and Clean—Flush the sink with boiling water every day and about once a week with a strong solution of washing soda.

Place a Fresh Cake or loaf of bread through the center and serve the slices first. By pushing out edges closely together the whole will remain moist and fresh.

Flaked Cereals, crushed, make a delicious coating for croquettes.

HEART AND HOME

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 15. A boy of 15 loves me or at least says he does, and he acts like it. I am not allowed to go with boys and all the other girls of 15 do, and they do worse than I do. There are some things he wants me to do that I won't do and he gets angry. He is the only one I care anything for. Please tell me what to do to keep him in good humor.

EDDY.
You are not the only girl of 15 who does not go with boys. You only go that a good many girls of that age are permitted to do it, and you base your conclusions unfairly. Absolutely your parents are right in saying that you are too young.

Since you have your standards of right and wrong, stick to them. The fact that the boy wants you to do things you consider wrong should not alter your determination to do right. Don't be a weak jelly fish, because you will not gain anything by it. People admire character and if you refuse to be led by the will of others, when you know that what you are doing is right, that will be much better to have good friends for a few years instead of sweethearts. Above everything else remember that happiness depends on doing what you know to be right. Let people get angry at you if they want to. When they see that you are not influenced by their wrath they will come back to you in a more pleasant state of mind and be willing to accept your wishes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: About three years ago we had some very close friends who moved away from here to another town. When they were leaving they were keeping they gave us a picture which they valued highly. It was an original oil painting, rather large to carry, and they said there was no wall space in the apartment they were taking in the other city.

We were delighted to have the picture. Our friends said that we had meant a lot to them and they wanted to leave the picture to us to show their appreciation of what we had done for them during the time we were friends. They said nothing about lending the picture, and every time they spoke of it they said they were giving it to us.

Now they have moved back here and they say they want their picture back. We have learned to love it and don't want to part with it. Do you think it is right for them to ask to have it back?

B. J. N.
It is contrary to good breeding to give a present and then ask to have it back. No matter what the cause, the gift may not be recalled. Often, as is the case with your friends, regrets follow and the thing is more deeply valued after it has been parted with, but once gone it may not be taken back.

Since your friends have asked such a thing, however, good breeding demands that you return the picture at once. Don't argue the matter, simply return the gift. It is unfortunate that such a thing should have happened, because you can never feel the same toward the people again. They have done something small which you will never be able to forget.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going to make a navy blue dress. What color would you combine with it?

G. G. D.
Tan is very good with navy blue and particularly popular this season.

Many Children Vitamin-Starved

Vitamin B is a food element as essential to life and health as water. Yet many of the very foods you think most nourishing are deficient in this vital substance; among them, meats, lard, butter, egg flour bread, rice, corn meal, and many popular breakfast foods. Even milk is not rich enough.

WICK CREEK Vitamin B. Many children suffer from vitamin starvation. Weak, nervous, low energy, strength and vitality, and fall an easy prey to disease.

Now A Complete Food
"ZEP," a delicious new breakfast food—a toasted delight, ready to serve—supplies in itself not only the necessary vitamin B, but also iron for building and food for the bones and muscles, and other food salts for the brain and nerves. Children love it. Give it to them with cream or milk every day and you'll see new energy in their cheeks.

ASK YOUR GROCER
for "ZEP" and Nanticoke Cereal. Cook them up—the original Battle Creek Bran. It is the best. Goes fine with "Wheat" Look for the yellow package with red seal.
